

TIMOTHY OULTON

SILVER CERTIFICATE CHIEF

Wall Art

Timothy Oulton's Silver Certificate wall art depicts one of the most artistically-inspired series of antique U.S. currency, marking the nation's achievements and history. The bills were designed by prominent American artists and feature personified Neo-Classical motifs. They are considered to be some of the most beautiful monetary designs ever produced by the United States. The bills were redeemable for their face value of silver coins, and are still recognised as valid legal tender today.

Chief Running Antelope Design (1899): Chief Running Antelope became leader of the Hunkpapa tribe in 1851 and was a close advisor to Sitting Bull during the Prairie Indian Wars. A brave warrior, Running Antelope was also a great orator and diplomat, and was one of many Sioux chiefs to sign of the Treaty of 1868. The $5 certificate bearing his image became one of the most popular notes in US currency.
